Co-curated Experience Events

The First 317 Years

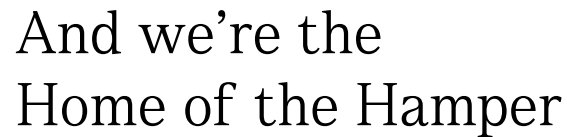

Mr. Hugh Mason ran a small store in St James' Market, and Mr. William Fortnum, who was quite the entrepreneur, took a post as Footman in Queen Anne's household. Queen Anne insisted on new candles every day, and Mr. Fortnum had the ingenious idea of selling the half-used candle wax. This paved the way for the beginning of our business.

Once the pair joined forces, such early innovation set the tone for more than 300 years of playfulness and creativity.

Today, we are home to extraordinary food, joy-giving things, unforgettable experiences and exceptional service. Fortnum's has established itself as a pioneering global retail and hospitality institution and millions from around the world visit our flagship store in Piccadilly to enjoy our wonderful bars and restaurants, and explore our famous food, gift and fragrance halls. Our beautiful building is a corner shop that has seen it all.

They began as travellers' baskets and picnics for hunters and have since scaled the heights of Everest, supplied provisions at the excavation of Tutankhamun, been praised by Charles Dickens, devoured by generations of Prime Ministers and more recently they embarked on a 10,000-mile journey across 23 countries on the top of a very old Land Rover.

Hand-crafted from willow grown in sustainable wetlands, our baskets are finished with the Fortnum & Mason stamp of approval.
